

WORKING TRANSLATION

Advisory Commission recommends settlement

Berlin / Magdeburg (28 March 2013). Under the impression that the former director of the Clemens Sels Museum of the city of Neuss did not act in bad faith when purchasing the painting “Makabre Szene – Dachgarten der Irrsinnigen” (Macabre scenes) by Joachim Ringelnatz, and that Westheim had to sell the painting because of his emigration as a result of Nazi persecution, the Advisory Commission recommended an out-of-court settlement to the parties. The parties agreed and the settlement was concluded as recommended. The painting “Makabre Szene – Dachgarten der Irrsinnigen” remains with the Clemens Sels Museum Neuss. The city of Neuss will pay Euro 7,000 to Ms Frenk.